A Horseback riding exploring these tunnels means delving into the heart of the Yungas an adventure you cannot miss if you visit our country. The Railway Tunnels of La Merced are located about 59km from San Fernando del Valle de Catamarca and accessed via National route 38.

This grand project began construction in 1950, and its main purpose was to connect the provinces of Catamarca and Tucumán through six tunnels amidst the Yungas and mountains. However, the project couldn't be completed due to the high humidity in the area, which caused water seepage and could weaken the structure.

Today, they are a must-see attraction in our province, and visitors can explore them through hiking or mountain biking.
